VESTA MINES TO START TOMORROW

Operations to be Resumed Under New Wage Scale Agreement Just Reached

ADVANCE OF FIVE PER CENT

The strike at the Vesta Coal company mines, operated as subsidiary concerns of the Jones and Laughlin Steel company has reached its end with the signing of a scale granting a definite increase. Tomorrow the Vesta mines will begin operations, with no prospect of a shut-down.

The scale was signed late Tuesday by the officers of the Jones & Laughlin company and a committee representing the miners. It is based on last year's scale, with a direct five per cent increase.

With the resumption of the Vesta mines the backbone of the strike in the Monongahela valley will be broken, and it is predicted there will be a quick return to work of miners at other mines.

At Monongahela miners again met today and took up the question of the new wage scale proposed by a recently appointed scale committee. Later it will be presented to coal operators for their signature. A committee reported that independent operators were willing that miners return to work under the old scale until an adjustment was reached. This afternoon the matter of a special convention of miners in Pittsburgh next week is being taken up.

FLAG DAY

Unfold the Starry Banner with its vivid stripes of red;—
The sacred emblem of our sires, for which their blood was shed.
Shall we sit and calmly listen to a mocking nation's jeers?
Has the iron sap of our forebears been diluted with false fears?
Prepare at once, lest we be called to face tremendous odds—
We must not be defeated when the fight we fight is God's.

Unfold the Starry Banner; that the mocking voice be still!
We'll pledge our sacred honor in the blood our brave have spilled.
Grim Death will have no terrors when we answer Freedom's call,
And every mother's son of us will fight before we'll crawl.
Our flag stands for the godly and our God stands for the flag.
Remember it's "Old Glory," not a cowardly, drooping rag.

Unfold the Starry Banner; let no one else profess
The symbol of our manhood in Humanity's campaign.
Once light the fires of Justice and they'll burn 'til "Kingdom come."
Americans will bear the torch through Death and Martyrdom.
Though Might, mailed and barbaric a gigantic spectre looms—
Where blood of tyrant damps the soil the Flower of Freedom blooms.

HEAVY DAMAGES ASKED FROM DRIVER OF AUTO

Miss Pearl Fram Sues to Recover Sum of $10,000 Because of Injuries—Avers Reckless Driving Was Cause

Pearl Fram of Charleroi by her next friend and father, Robert Fram, and Robert Fram, in his own behalf, have filed a suit against Pierce C. Johnson of Monessen, in which $10,000 damages are asked, by reason of personal injuries sustained by Pearl Fram when struck by an automobile of the defendant.

The accident occurred on May 21, on McKean avenue, Charleroi, near a switch of the Westside Electric Street Railway Co. Miss Fram, at the time, was walking along McKean avenue, with a friend, Josephine VanVlasselaer. They had just signaled a car at this point which was a regular stopping place and had stepped off the curb and were approaching the street car when the accident occurred.

It is averred the accident was due to the defendant attempting to pass the street car on the right side, while it was stopped for the purpose of taking on passengers. Further, it is alleged, the defendant was driving his automobile in a reckless manner. It is averred the defendant attempted to stop, but on account of the speed, with which he was going, the car skidded, striking and dragging Miss Fram and her companion.

Miss Fram avers she was knocked down, her hat and clothing torn, her spectacles broken, and she was badly cut and bruised, requiring the attention of a physician. The father says he has been required to expend considerable money for medical attention for his daughter.

CONTROLLER TO DEFEND SUITS FOR MONEY DUE FROM COUNTY

Underwood Asks to be Allowed to Intervene As Party Defendant—Voucher Clerk Sues for Salary.

T. J. Underwood, county controller, has asked to be allowed to intervene as party defendant to two suits that have been filed against the county. A rule has been secured on the county commissioners to show cause why the prayer of the controller should not be granted. The rule is returnable to June 19, 1916 at 10 o'clock.

The two suits involved are the one in which Irene Zane, voucher clerk in the office of the county commissioners, sues to recover $65 salary due her, and the other in which Thomas Arrigo seeks to recover $182.05 for work done in repairing the Taylor's Run road No. 2. In both these actions the commissioners have filed affidavits of defense in which they aver there is no valid reason why the claims should not be paid, but say that the controller has refused to countersign the vouchers for the payment of the same.

OPERATIONS ARE ALL SUSPENDED

Lilley Mine Will Not Try to Operate and Discharge All Its Men

TOOLS STOCKED AT MINE

The Lilley Coal and Coke company Tuesday morning discontinued all efforts to resume operations at their mine near West Brownsville and will wait until the present labor controversy is adjusted before attempting to resume operations. Tools of the miners were taken from the mine and stacked along the pit mouth and will remain there unless their owners remove them. Live stock was turned into pasture and preparations were made for a long suspension of operations.

The official announcement of the company Tuesday morning contained the information that all miners could consider themselves discharged and that when the labor disturbances is adjusted would have to make application for jobs again.

An effort was made last week by the officials of the company to enter into a local agreement with the miners, but the men refused to return to work when other mines in the district were closed down. Local differences regarding the stand taken by the company in the discharge of several employees, is said to have figured in the refusal of the miners to return to work.

YORK DIES FROM GUNSHOT WOUND

Bentleyville Man at Hospital Expires Without Making Statement

INVESTIGATION IS ASKED FOR

Frank York, aged 55 years of Bentleyville died at the Charleroi-Monessen hospital late Tuesday afternoon from a bullet wound in the head and throat that from late developments is believed to have been self-inflicted. He died without making a definite statement.

York was brought to the hospital last Thursday after having been found in a lonely place two miles from his home at Bentleyville, badly wounded. A gun was in his hand. At the hospital it was discovered the bullet had taken a peculiar course and had lodged in his throat. No powder marks showed and there was evidence of a mystery in the shooting. County Detective William McCleary investigated Tuesday and found all evidence pointed to suicide.

Deputy Coroner Lawrence B. Frye was notified upon York's death and the body was taken to the morgue of M. T. Crowley. The funeral will be held Thursday morning and interment will be in Calvary cemetery. York's widow, one son and two stepsons survive. They have asked that a searching investigation be made into York's death.

DAISY

By JANE OSBORN.

Daisy Dodge was standing in a frame of sunshine in the doorway of the little eight-sided school at Dabneyville vigorously ringing the large hand bell that called the children, little and big, back to the afternoon session.

Here's another letter for you, Miss Dodge, piped one of the older girls, L. Gussie Love, daughter of the general storekeeper, who also acted as postmaster.

After school Daisy began to read her letter.

"Dear Miss," it began in large, distinct, boyish writing. "I'm not much of a letter writer, and I haven't ever started writing to a young lady before, but it is so lonesome out here in the lumber camp that I thought I would begin just to keep from getting so dreadfully blue. Perhaps you have never seen a lumber camp. I am sending a snapshot that shows just what I look like. When you answer this letter, as I hope you will soon, please send me a picture of yourself. I always did like brown-eyed girls the best. With best wishes, Thomas William Jones.

"P. S.—I forgot to say that I am boss of a hundred men in the lumber work and I own ten thousand acres of unworked lumber land that I am going to begin cutting when I have saved enough to begin—perhaps next winter."

For just a moment, Daisy's eyes lingered with interest on the snapshot photograph that showed the writer of the letter in his characteristic costume of the lumberman—at his work. She tucked the picture back in the envelope when she realized that she was allowing herself to admire the broad shoulders, straight figure and well-proportioned features of the stranger.

Then she took the key from the pocket of her plain school dress, opened a desk drawer and carefully took out ten letters that she had received within the last two weeks.

Why these letters? Why these proposals?

For half an hour Daisy sat and pondered. Then she wrote a letter that she hoped might clear up the mystery and restore her peace of mind.

It was to this Thomas William Jones, and in it she told him frankly what had happened and she asked him to help her solve the problem.

The letter she received in reply was brief and to the point. "I am ashamed of myself for having written the sort of letter I did, but I was very lonely."

Then he explained that he had read a description of Daisy in a sheet published in a matrimonial bureau.

Daisy answered this letter promptly and then waited impatiently for the next letter from her unseen champion.

On a warm spring evening, about two weeks later, Daisy was sitting on the upper porch of her three-room upstairs abode, when she saw through the semidarkness the tall figure of a stranger swinging up the road and then turning in at the schoolhouse patch. Her heart was beating with excitement when she reached the downstairs door and stood face to face with a strange young man. She had half guessed—surely she had hoped even—that it was Thomas William Jones, and Thomas William Jones it turned out to be.

"I've been traveling a day and a night to get here," he told her, standing in her open door, hat in hand. "The reason I came—partly, at least—is to tell you that I have put a stop to those annoying letters. I went to the place where they publish the sheet and I held them up for the letter. Some one had sent it in signed with your name."

Daisy and the stranger forgot all about the offender and began to talk of other matters—even about themselves. They had both been very lonely. They had both lived for years without any real friends.

It was quite dark when Thomas William Jones started to return to the little local tavern where he had left his bag on his arrival in the village. He had been in Daisy's company rather less than an hour, and already she regarded him as her firm friend.

"You will just have my word for it that I am what I say I am," he declared, "but I want to tell you before I leave tonight that only one of the reasons I came here was to give you the letter from the agent. The other reason was to find out for myself if you aren't the girl I have been dreaming of all my life. Are you going to send me back to the woods without a chance to make good?"

Daisy put out her hand to bid him good night.

"You must go away now," she said, "but I don't want you to go back to that lonely camp until—until—"

For a moment he held her hand securely in his giant paw and then he turned and went without another word.

Daisy went to her little bedroom and, before the small oil lamp, opened the folded pages of the letter the stranger had brought from the matrimonial bureau. She read what purported to be a letter from herself, signed by her own name. It was in the crude copy-book writing of Gussie Love.

"It's a state-prison offense," she said, half aloud, "but I'll forgive you, Gussie. I can afford to. You did it to bring me happiness and you have succeeded."

ENDED PERIOD OF INACTION

Before Verdun Attack Soldiers Had a Comparatively Easy Time in the Trenches.

"The Verdun battle ended a very long period of inaction," said Col. Don Nicolas y Cerejo, the Spanish military attaché, at a reception.

"The inaction was, in fact, so marked that an English officer, talking to me while over here on brief leave, said:

"Oh, yes, we were quite comfy in our winter quarters—jolly fine trenches, good bunk holes, quiet Germans. We'd been told that there were only the caretaker and his wife in the German trench opposite ours. He fired the shots while she sent up the flares."

"We used to get so fed up with doing nothing," the English officer continued, "that we'd organize every Friday a cleaning fatigue. We'd take down all our sandbags and give them a thorough dusting, and sections of our men, armed with the very latest and most potent polishes, would go out and polish up the long lines of wire entanglements till they shone like virgin silver in the winter sun."

"Of course," ended Colonel Cerejo, "the Verdun offensive ended all that kind of joking talk."

One Man's Theory.

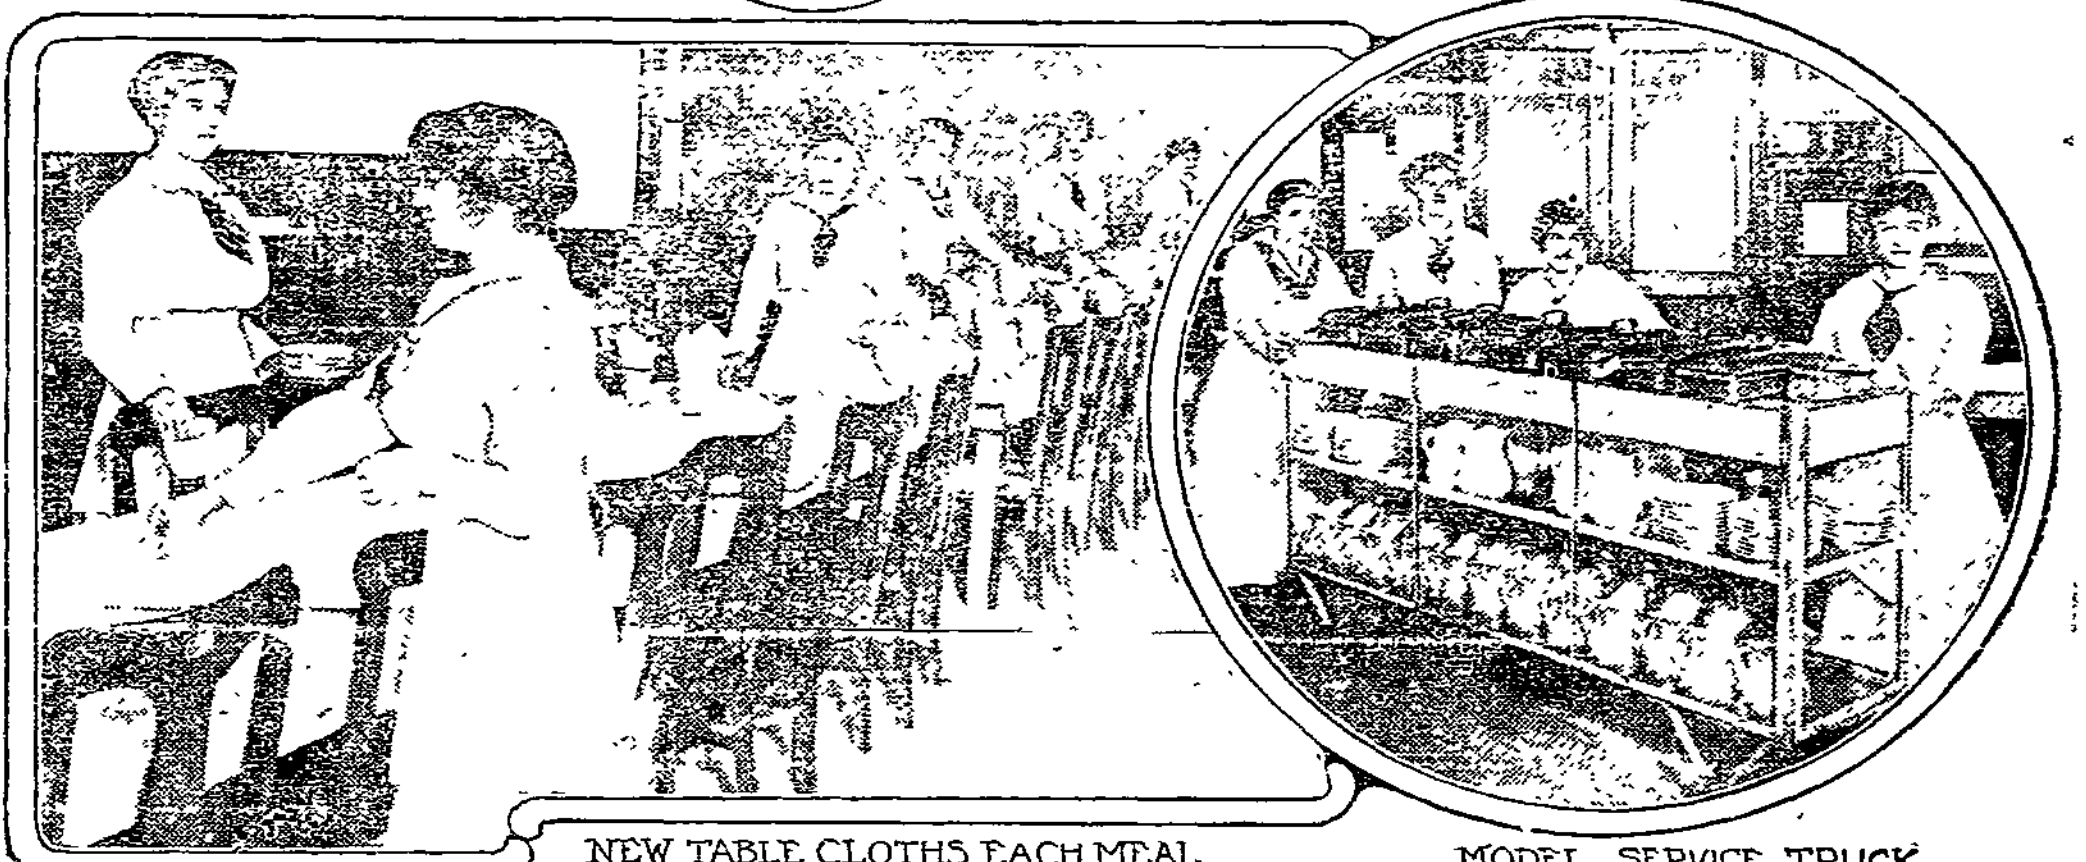

Mrs. Wederly—Men talk of the joys of single blessedness, but statistics prove that more bachelors than married men commit suicide.

Mr. Singleton—Yes, that's true.

Mrs. Wederly—Oh, then you are willing to admit it. Then I suppose you can explain why it is true.

Mr. Singleton—Sure I can. They are driven to despair by other people's babies.

Gypsy Kiss Route Policeman.
Policeman Fred Barton, who has never been looked upon as a Beau Brummel, was directed to follow a couple of pretty gypsy women to see that they did not tell fortunes. He followed the pair into a store, and thought he detected them in making an effort to do business when he spoke to them.

"Oh, my dear little thing," cried one of the women, as she threw herself in his arms and clung to his neck and kissed him fairly upon the lips. The policeman's face was crimson as he rushed back to city hall and declared that some other member of the force would have to be assigned to trail the women.—Bridgeport (N. J.) Boston's Dawes Hotel.
Boston now has a Dawes hotel, similar to that in Chicago, which is sometimes known as a "flop de luxe." A report of this says: "The Dawes hotel treats each guest as a customer, making no inquiry as to his need for lodging even though the absence of profits makes the enterprise a partial charity. The fear has been expressed that this lack of any sifting process, together with the advertising placards placed in railroad stations of the leading cities near by, may lead to an influx of unemployed and unemployable men to Boston." That fear has not been realized in Chicago on account of the opening of the Dawes hotel there.

WHY WOMEN WRITE LETTERS

To Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co.

Women who are well often ask "Are the letters which the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. are continually publishing, genuine?" "Are they truthful?" "Why do women write such letters?"

In answer we say that never have we published a fictitious letter or name. Never, knowingly, have we published an untruthful letter, or one without the full and written consent of the woman who wrote it.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and suffering.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; their keen desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

New Post Toasties

Here's the why:

The New Toasties have a delicate, true corn flavour---unmatched by any other corn flakes. Trial proves.

They are the meat of choicest white Indian Corn--first cooked and seasoned, then rolled into thin wisps and toasted by quick, intense rotary heat. This new patented process of making raises distinguishing little bubbles on each flake, and brings out their wonderful new flavour.
